Set January 31 as Tentative Date for Fire District Election

Commission to Submit Budget to the Voters

Several meetings have been held recently by the Lemon Grove Fire Commissioners Messrs. Mason, Dura and Anderson, for the purpose of drawing up a budget to be submitted to the voters of the Lemon Grove Fire Protection District for their approval. The tentative date set for the election is Tuesday, January 31.

Although the commissioners have interviewed several representatives of truck companies no decision has been reached as to the make and model to be purchased.

"It is a certainty, however, that the best possible equipment applicable to our needs are being considered," said Channing Mason, chairman of the Commission this morning.

"Estimates as to the amount of money needed to construct a fire house are under consideration and will be released next week along with total capital outlay figures and amount needed to establish and equip the department," said Mr. Mason.

The Lemon Grove Fire Protection was formed by an act of the San Diego County Board of Supervisors on November 14.

The commissioners were appointed and they immediately set to work and are now prepared to call an election.

Plans are complete for Troop 8 to have weekend camp on the Singing Hills ranch from Friday until Sunday.

Mrs. David Fraser will conduct her third class in Leadership Study on Monday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the clubhouse. Mrs. Fraser will discuss "Starting the Club Year Right." Drama Section rehearsals for a one-act comedy to be presented in January have been resumed, and the study of Odette and Kaufman dramas undertaken.

Monterey Heights Christmas Party

The annual Christmas party of the Monterey Heights Civic Organization was held the evening of December 23, in the lot adjoining the Union Gas station on Englewood drive. The brilliantly lighted tree, put up by members of the organization the preceding Sunday, shone forth in all its glory, extending a sincere invitation to all good folk, to gather around.

The party opened with Christmas music, which floated out on the still night air from recordings, on equipment furnished by Bob Galland's Radio Service, Englewood drive. The arrival of Santa Claus was announced with a thunderous ovation from the more than 500 kids of all ages.

Circumstances beyond control made it necessary for the jolly old fellow to complete his journey in the modern manner. Three miles on the other side of Jamul, three of his reindeer were overcome by heat and not having any more snow he was compelled to finish his journey in a hay wagon drawn by a modern tractor. This worked out fine, however, as the kids were given rides on this outfit, much to their delight.

Led by Santa Claus, who is no mean musician, the Bluebirds and Brownie Troops of Monterey Heights, opened the program with

C of C By-Laws Changes Proposed

The first Board meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held Tuesday evening in the Court room of Homeland township. The retiring president, Ted Haaf, presented the gavel to V. J. Dorman, the new president.

The first motion passed was a resolution thanking and commending Mr. Haaf for his fine work as president.

The president appointed as chairman: Stanley Blake, member; A. F. Sonka, streets; James Pierce, auditing.

The secretary, Jeanette Vaughn, was instructed to secure the approval of the membership for the following resolutions passed to amend the by-laws: 1. To provide that a member of the Executive Board need not be a resident of Lemon Grove if he has a business in Lemon Grove. 2. That a director cannot succeed himself on the Board at the expiration of his term until after a period of one year.

A motion was made to extend the thanks of the group to Powow, Inc. for the piano presented to Community Center.

The regular meeting of the Board will be held on the first Tuesday of each month in the court room at 7:30 p.m.

Work Begins on New High March First

Actual work on the high school site in La Mesa will begin about March 1, according to an estimate made by Assistant Superintendent, Harold G. Hughes. This early action is the result of a board action in retaining the services of G. S. Powell of La Mesa and Henry W. Albert of Chula Vista to prepare grading and drainage plans for the site on University avenue. Planning will require several weeks after which the board will advertise for bids on the extensive grading and drainage project which is estimated to cost $40,000.

Preliminary plans provide for grading the buildings and physical education areas into two levels, with communication between the two levels to be by ramps. This will eliminate expensive retaining walls and stairs and will provide for the maximum of safety and convenience of communication between all areas on the campus.

The board also qualified for allocation of State Building funds by approving a resolution to eventually replace non-approved structures on the Grossmont site; such action to be deferred until the completion of the two new high schools in La Mesa and El Cajon.

School resumed Tuesday with the new $108,378 Girls' shower and locker building available. This building provides the girls' physical education classes with sanitary, convenient and adequate dressing room and shower facilities for 1,000 girls. Already 1,300 will be crowded into these facilities. Relief will come in 1951 when the new high school is completed. A general physical education room is a feature of this building which will provide space for classes in folk dancing, corrective physical education, rhythm and badminton. The room is also designed for use by small groups for recreational activities, games and dancing.

THEOSOPHICAL STUDY

The Theosophical Study Group of Lemon Grove will hold its first meeting of the new year on Monday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lehmann, 2660 Citronella street. "The Time of Beginnings" has been chosen as the theme for discussion. All those attending are invited to contribute thoughts pertaining to the significance of the New Year and its customs such as making resolutions, etc. The public is cordially invited.

San Diego County Leads in Growth

San Diego County shows the highest percentage of growth of any California county during the past 10 years, according to a survey just completed by the United Press.

Almost as many persons live in the southern part of California today as lived in the entire State 10 years ago, the survey shows. In this phenomenal growth, State the most phenomenal growth of all has been south of the Tehachapi Mountains.

On April 1, 1940, the nine Southern California counties contained 3,705,606 persons. Now, according to the best available estimates from county clerks and Chambers of Commerce, they contain 6,014,015.

That is an increase of approximately 2,300,000 and amounts about five-eighths of the State total growth of 3,700,000 during the past 10 years. The State itself has risen from the fifth place in the country, with 6,907,387 10 years ago, to the second largest, with 10,665,000 residents last month, according to an official Census Bureau report.

Here are the 1940 and current figures on the nine southern counties.

County	1940	Today (est)
Imperial	59,740	70,000
Los Angeles	2,785,643	4,300,000
Orange	130,760	290,600
Riverside	105,524	155,000
San Bernardino	161,108	280,000
San Diego	289,348	665,000
San Luis Obispo	33,246	60,000
Santa Barbara	70,555	89,415
Ventura	69,685	104,000

Only Imperial, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties have escaped the population boom and its attendant problems, although Ventura and Riverside counties failed to show quite the rapid growth that came to the remaining four.

San Diego County showed the greatest percentage growth, a 132% increase in a decade, but Orange was close on its heels with a 123% climb.

The greatest numerical increase was in Los Angeles County which crowded in 55% more people, mostly in the already densely settled metropolitan area. Increase for the entire southern section of the State was 62%.

The Lemon Grove postoffice had the best year in 1949 of any since it was established. The business for 1949 totaled $18,000 as compared to $13,600 in 1948.

For the quarter just ended, Postmaster Faucher, reports $12,232.56 as compared to $9,066.83 for the corresponding quarter in 1948.

Postoffice business is an excellent barometer of the growth of the community.

Mrs. Randolph Morse, 3354 Golden avenue, would be pleased to have anyone wishing to dispose of Christmas cards to leave the cards at the Lemon Grove library.

This year Mrs. Morse made 50 books and had over 1000 cards to give to the children.

Christmas Party for Junior Patrol

The California State Highway Patrol gave an annual Christmas party for all Junior Patrol boys in the County Schools in this area at the San Diego Police Pistol Range. The morning's activities consisted of games and hikes and plenty to eat in the way of ham, burgers, potato salad, soft drinks and ice cream. There were many second and third prizes.

After lunch the boys were entertained by Roney Pease and his two daughters who put on a thrilling exhibition of sharpshooting. The day's activities ended with a fine performance of magic with rabbits, card tricks and disappearing objects.

The party was planned and supervised by Officer Coates working under Captain Clodfelter of the San Diego Branch of the Highway Patrol, and given in recognition of the fine work and service the members of the Junior Patrol are doing in protecting school children at dangerous crossings in various parts of the county.

The Lemon Grove Parent-Teachers Association contributed $20 to help defray the expenses of this annual Christmas party. The School Board and staff wishes to express its appreciation to Bernard Davis and members of the Junior Patrol and to commend the work of Officer Coates who trains and supervises the Junior Patrols in this area. The work of the Junior Patrol is an integral part of the safety training carried on in the Lemon Grove School District.

Aren't you glad the holidays are over?

That's the same old query propounded about this time every year.

Perhaps people are glad that the extra strain of busy days is past, but there are many gracious things that are missed, too. The joyous greetings, the comradery the sincere wishes for happiness and success for the other fellow.
But need these be missed? Could n't that same spirit of kindness and interest in others' welfare be evident in each day of the year.
Couldn't we make Lemon Grove the Good Neighbor town with a Hi Neighbor spirit the year 'round. Try it. We might find a lot of good folks living just around the corner and who want friends.

Another thing we'll miss are the beautiful holiday greeting scenes painted on the store windows by Frank Higgins, Aircraft Sign designer. These decorations were works of art and a treat much to the spirit of the season.
When the decorations were made, it was a little like the scene, "Holiday Greetings," which was a gay use of color and a fancy little quirk of pattern that marked it the work of an artistic hand.

Then there were the community Christmas trees and the lighted trees out of doors in the private gardens. In this balmy Christmas weather, a town needs a lot of out door lighted trees, so let's hope that another year a club or group of organizations will sponsor a contest for outdoor lighted trees. Have them lighted early in the season and they'll find people catching the Christmas spirit earlier, which will mean earlier Christmas shopping and planning.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORRIS

By the time 1950 is over, the phrase "welfare state" should be as firmly engrained in the nation as consciousness as William Jennings Bryan's "cross of gold" or FDR's "new deal." The words crop up in every political argument.

Under the Welfare State, the Federal government would assume direct responsibility for the welfare of every citizen. The argument centers over whether that is good or bad—and both proponents and detractors are fond of pointing to England as a shining or horrible example of the Welfare State in operation.

Actually, there are closer examples to study. There are 400, 000 Indians in the United States—24,000 of them living in California alone, mostly in reservations under the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Indian Affairs. The Indians, American Citizens of sorts, are residents of a Welfare State, for the Government for many decades has assumed direct responsibility for their welfare.

According to the Hoover Commission on Government Re-organization, the Bureau of Indian Affairs employs 12,000 people, administers 5,000 statutes, operates schools and hospitals, supervises land and management, constructs irrigation projects, builds roads and buildings, and assists in the growth of political life—everything, in short, that a Welfare State should do.

Many Indians, however, are far from satisfied with their lot, and occasionally, as any citizens of a democracy are entitled to do, seek redress. Last June the Tribal Council of Hoopa Valley, a reservation located far off the beaten path in the remote wilds of eastern Humboldt County, raised funds to send E. L. Godfrey, their Tribal Representative, to Congress to represent the tribe on matters affecting their welfare.

First, however, the Council had to seek permission from the Field Director of the Indian Agency.
Permission was denied and Mr.
Godfrey didn't go to Washington.

Mr. Godfrey has an interesting story to tell, though, of the Welfare State as practiced in Hoopa.
According to Mr. Godfrey, at the Hoopa school, which he attended, six year old children were forced to labor for their board and room.
Eleven children were seriously injured in the school laundry and two were killed—all by the same machine, an obsolete laundry mangle with no safety devices.
The boys and girls were treated, according to the Tribal Representative, as inmates of a penal institution. To compensate for lack of heating facilities, the children were made to box each other to keep warm. It was common to find worms and rats leavings in the cereal and food, Mr. Godfrey claims.

In all its sordidness and heartbreak, the Hoopa story, duplicated by stories of similar conditions in other Indian reservations in California and other places, would fill many pages. It would provide a useful blueprint for the Welfare State in operation to be far across the sea, not in the incomey future, but here and now, consumed.

It's a blueprint, however, that isn't likely to be printed by the Government Printing Office.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

It's not easy to service the intricate election machinery which whirrs so efficiently and quietly behind the scenes that few of the State's four and a half million registered voters scarce know of its existence.

But California's genial, silver-haired Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan (a candidate for re-election himself) is hard at work checking all parts so that the State's electorate can go to the polling places June 6, 1950 and cast their ballots at the Primary Election—and later at the November 7, 1950 General Election.

Secretary of State Jordan already has announced the list of offices to be voted upon at the June 6 election—and as there are certain rules to the "getting elected" game, they, too, have been made available.

Jordan has pointed out for those with a desire to serve the people that there will be 135 different opportunities ranging from Governor to Board of Equalization offices.

Opening date for candidates to make known their intentions, officially, to the waiting electorate, is March 8. The final date is April 1. And to be sure that all who announce are serious, provision is made that fee will be paid.

The fees varies in amount, ranging from two percent of the amount of the salary for the office for Statewide offices to one percent of the salary for district offices. Candidates for the State and Assembly pay a flat rate of $20.00. And any candidate who wishes to be both Democrat and Republican, that is, cross-file, must pay a fee for each ticket.

The State offices to be filled, Jordan states, and the fees for each, are as follows:
Governor, $500 per candidate.
Lt. Governor, Secretary of State, Controller and Treasurer, $240 each. Attorney General, $320.
Four Board of Equalization offices, $120. Twenty-three congressional seats, $125. One berth in the U. S. Senate, $250. Twenty openings in the State Senate and 80 in the Assembly, $20. And last on the list of 135 openings, but not least, a chance, for $300, to become Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Each candidate for office, in addition to paying a filing fee, is required to secure a certain number of sponsors. That is, the candidate must be able to show that there are others beside himself who desire him in public office.
In the case of a person running for Governor, he must present the names (with approval thereof) of not less than 65 sponsors nor more than 100.

To those not looking for jobs but merely interested in voting on the applicants, Secretary of State Jordan also has announced that April 13 will be the last day to register for all who failed to vote in the last General Election (November, 1948).

The election wheels are oiled and all is in readiness. Campaign fireworks will light up California skies from now on.

Flies Ann Walks With Mother Nature

BY TRIXIE TREGANZA

OWLS

Who-o-hoo, too-hoo, too-cold, says old Bubo, the owl. And do you know, children, why Mr. and Mrs. Owl are always wailing in such a dismal voice? Somehow other birds don't like the owls.
Just let one show himself at daytime and there will be a whole flock of birds chasing and pecking and driving him away. But there's a reason why Owls are so unpopular. Well, sir, a long time ago when the world was very young, the birds were without fire on the earth. Little Jennie Wren, the tiniest of them all, offered to go to Heaven and bring down a firebrand; but in so doing she burned all the feathers off her little body, and so the birds decided each to pluck a feather from his own breast and clothe her with a new dress—all except the Owl. When it came his turn, oh, no, he couldn't spare a feather. He'd be too cold, too-cold, and so to this very day he has been unpopular and sort of an outcast among his brothers of the air.

Somehow the Owl has always been shrouded in mystery and superstition. Ancient people believe that it brought the calamity and its presence near a sick room meant certain death. Others regarded it as a symbol of wisdom, probably because its eyes are so big and round and it blinks so knowingly and because more than any other bird it has been written about in our folk-lore and fables and poetry. The Kootenay Indians tell how the Wicked Owl carried off crying children. Only through some trick was it killed and its body burned by a Coyote; but its spirit rose from the ashes as a swarm of bloodsucking mosquitoes.

But I just couldn't get along without my Owls. Why, they are the night shift of my police force. When you and daddy and mother are sleeping peacefully through the long night, I must keep right on working, for Nature never stops. I must see that my Nightwatchmen are arresting the dangerous night-prowlers—the meadow mice, field mice, rats, moles, shrews, gnats and night-flying moths and insects that are laying waste to father's efforts during the day. I couldn't tell you about all my Owl children for I have 250 species and they range in size from a sparrow to a small eagle.

Old Mr. Great Horns measures about 22 inches. He really hasn't horn, they are just stiff tufts of feathers. His coat is brown and mottled and he glides through the air softly and silently. For his home he chooses a bare ledge on a cliff, no nest except a few feathers stuck into a rat excrement and a scattering of pebbles. Or perhaps Mrs. Bubo might select a last years Hawk nest high up in an oak or eucalyptus where her booming bass voice echoes through the night, sometimes blending with the quivering tenor of the coyote to complete the harmony of an uncanny duet.

Mr. and Mrs. Monkey-face usually live in barns, and when the downy babies are to be fed they will bring a mouse to the nest every 10 minutes. Owls swallow their food whole. Sometimes it isn't as easy as it seems.

They do look so funny with a mouse-tail still hanging out of the beak; but finally launched in his stomach, the bone, skulls, fur and feathers are rolled into little balls or pellets and spit out. Sometimes as much as a bushel of pellets have been gathered from the foot of an Owl perch.

In the dense thickets and dark forests you will find my Long-eared or Cat Owls. For indeed they do look just like a cat when you surprise one and it stiffens up and peers over the edge of the nest with a questioning look.

My Short-eared Owls are at home on the marshes. Marsh Harriers they are called, and just like a hunting dog they beat back and forth, very often at day time in quest of food. Their four to six white eggs are laid out in the open field protected only by a clump of sprigling marsh grass.

And Billy Owl will bow and bow and keep turning his little head to watch you. He chooses a burrow for his home and lives out in the Prairie Dog or Gopher Town. He carpets his tunnel with horse manure, and so that Mrs.
Owl will not have too many babies to feed at once, she parks the eggs along the runway and brings them down to incubate at her pleasure. And don't you believe it, children dear, if anyone should tell you that the Burrowing Owl, the Rattlesnake and the Prairie Dogs all happily share the same home together. Because the Owl would eat the Prairie Dog and the snake if it were small, and the snake would delight in eating the Owl eggs or perhaps the baby Owls.

Then there are my Screech Owls, my Pigmys and Saw-whets, my Snowy and Barred and Hawk Owls and ever so many others that I will tell you about some other time.

If there is one enterprise on earth that the quitter should leave alone, it is advertising. Advertising does not jerk . . . it pulls. It pulls gently at first but the pull is steady. It increases day by day, year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power.—John never let the local newspaper go to press without his

FARM NEWS

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

HOW MUCH ARE WE GOING TO EAT?

How much food we eat in the future is going to be very important to our agricultural economy. Farm Advisor E. C. Moore says there are three things that will affect how much we eat: the level of our incomes, the prices we have to pay, and how our food habits change.

These changes are not easy to determine during short periods of time. Moore says George Alcorn, specialist in agricultural economics for the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, has recently returned from an economic outlook conference in Washington, D. C., where these facts were brought out.

Alcorn says estimates have been made of how much each of us have eaten since 1909. From these figures it is possible to see what has happened to our eating habits over a long period of time. When food prices are low compared to other prices, and when the income level is high, the food consumption is high, and vice versa. However, the amount of income seems to have more effect upon food consumption than the level of food prices. During the depression of the 1930's food prices were low, which should have meant higher food consumption. However, the extremely low incomes had a greater effect and we ate less.

Total food consumption in the United States is currently about 26 percent above pre-war. This is due partly to the 14 percent increase in population and partly to the 10 percent increase in the amount of food consumed per person. The American public is expected to spend about $52 billion for food this year, compared to $15 billion in the pre-war years.

Alcorn says the long-time trends established since 1909 show that we have been eating more fruits, vegetables, dairy products, fats and oils, and fewer potatoes and cereal products.

LIME IN THE LITTER

A large part of the problem of disease control in poultry maintained on floor pens is keeping the litter dry. Farm Advisor R. H. Adolph, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, says disease germs and parasites flourish in dampness.

A chicken is lucky to have his house cleaned once a year. Some poultrymen only clean house when they are hit by some disease or infestation. In some cases the litter is re-used, and a new litter added from time to time. In well-ventilated poultry houses, built-up litter will stay dry throughout the season. It should be started during dry weather and stirred to keep it flaky.

Slaked lime or gypsum in the litter helps to keep it dry. The usual rate is about one pound per bird, or one pound per four square feet of floor space. The lime should be added before the litter becomes damp or caked in the late winter or early spring. If necessary, add lime at six to eight weeks' intervals. Adolph says the lime will add to the fertilizer value of the poultry manure as well as helping to keep the litter dry.

Adolph does not recommend re-using the litter as the best practice. However, where no serious disease or parasites were present, there may be no untoward results from using the old material as a basis for the built-up litter.

CROSSBREEDING MUST BE SYSTEMATIC

A systematic crossbreeding program, combined with good management and feeding practices offers opportunities for some commercial cattlemen to increase meat production in their herds. Farm Advisor F. W. Dorman, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service, says, however, that crossbreeding presents some problems for the average producer.

A well organized and systematic breeding program is necessary before any system of crossbreeding can be introduced. Both the females and the bulls used in crossbreeding should be selected as to type and the quality of the individual animals. Dorman says this is the most important when first cross females are to be kept in the breeding herd.

Crossbreeding must be systematic planned and carried through, with provision made for either raising straight-bred replacement females within the herd or buying replacements each year.

Dorman also emphasizes that crossbreeding will not solve all of a stockman's problems. Feeding and good management practices are as important in crossbreeding as they are in any successful cattle production.

CLOTHING PRICE TREND IS DOWN

We should be able to buy our new spring outfits for less money next year than we have in the past, especially if they are wool or rayon.

Home Advisor Bena Johnson says Julia Bond, home management specialist for the University of California Extension Service, reports that retail prices of clothing are down about seven percent from their high of last year.

This downward trend may continue into next year, especially in woolen and rayon products. Future prices of cotton textile products are still a question. Merchants and manufacturers are buying cautiously because of these downward price trends, and there have been textile shortages in some stores as a result.

Some changes are taking place in the kind of clothes we are wearing. During the first half of 1949 sales declined considerably in piece goods, furs, and women's and children's hosiery. In contrast, the production of nylon woven fabrics increased 150 percent over the same period in 1948. Nylon is being used now for many types of women's clothing. In fact 99 percent of the first eight months of 1949 was either all-nylon or had a nylon leg. Some nylon clothing for men is also becoming available, such as socks, shirts, undershirts and shorts.

Consumers may buy fewer clothes in 1950 if their incomes decline. First to feel the pressure will probably be some household textiles and "style" articles of clothing, Miss Bond says.

A PROPHECY PUDDING

Tradition has it that the one to find the almond in his portion of Swedish Jul Grot will be the next one married.

Try this pudding, suggests Home Advisor Bena Johnson of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service. Besides being an excellent conversation piece, Jul Grot is a good hearty dessert for the family at any time of the year.

6 tablespoons rice, well washed 1/2 teaspoon salt
4 cups milk, scalded
1 almond
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup sweet cream, scalded
Add rice and salt to milk in double boiler. Cook slowly until it is the consist of porridge, about 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Before serving, add the cream, sugar, and almond. Serve hot. Pass sugar, cinnamon, and melted butter.

FERTILIZERS INCREASE YIELDS, BUT NOT MINERALS IN POTATOES

Fertilizers can make a profitable increase in the yield of a potato field, but they have very little effect on the amount of minerals in the crop. Farm Advisor, E. C. Moore, of the Agricultural Extension Service reports that College of Agriculture tests proved the mature plants and tubers had about the same amounts of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potassium in both fertilized and non-fertilized plots.

During the early stages of growth the fertilized potato plants contained more nitrogen and phosphorus than the unfertilized plants, but at maturity there was very little difference. A potash application had no effect on the potassium content of the plants at any stage of growth.

TIME FOR GOPHER CONTROL

Mr. and Mrs. Gopher are expecting additions to their family any day now in your garden. Farm Advisor, E. C. Moore suggests starting control measures before the young become established.

Trapping is the most effective method for controlling the pocket gophers which are most common, but it takes a certain amount of skill. The Macabee wire trap and the California box trap are good and are generally available. The wire trap is harder to set but gives the best results. Moore recommends excavating a burrow beneath a mound until it branches and setting a trap in each branch. Always stake a trap so the gopher won't pull it back into the burrow or it won't be carried off by a dog or cat. Use a wire or heavy cord to tie the trap to the stake.

If the gopher is "wise" and fills the trap with dirt, it may not be set lightly enough to spring. If it is a wire trap, be sure the jaws can close quickly. Also check to be sure the trap fills the hole and doesn't leave room at the side for the gopher to go around.

TO DISCUSS ORCHARD

Problems connected with the fertilization of avocado orchards are scheduled for discussion at the January 9 meeting of the Farm Bureau Avocado Department, according to Chairman R. C. Sharp. Vista. The meeting will be held in the Escondido High School library, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to the question of when, what, and how much, Farm Advisor Joe Coony, plans to discuss soil reaction and soil analyses. All growers are invited, stated Sharp, and are urged to bring their fertilizer questions.

PRUNE DURING THE DORMANT SEASON

The old adage, "Summer-prune for fruit and winter-prune for wood," is not a reliable guide, Farm Advisor E. C. Moore explained to growers today. Deciduous orchards in California, with a very few exceptions, should be pruned during their dormant season, he adds.

The amount of new growth a tree makes is the best way to tell how much to prune. If the new growth is longer than it should be, then the previous pruning was probably too severe. If the tree does not have enough new growth, the previous cutting was probably too light. Pruning should include thinning out the fruiting shoots, and should be followed by a thorough hand-thinning of the fruit, if necessary. All trees should be thinned enough to let in the light, and all interfering branches, dead wood, and diseased parts removed.

The larger limbs should be spaced far enough apart to give them room to develop fruiting branches and spurs. Regular cutting of the tallest branches to strong, outward-growing laterals, will keep the trees from becoming too high. Cut all branches close to the limb so as not to leave stubs.

California fruit growers tend to plant their trees too close together for normal development. An ideal tree in shape, height and distribution of fruit wood must have room to grow.

Moore also emphasized, that good pruning will not make up for neglect in fertilization, cultivation, spraying, fruit thinning, irrigation or any other part of orchard management.

Make a figure 8 with a slender strip of sweet yeast dough and you'll create an interesting new roll which can be highlighted with fruit or preserves.

Figure 8 rolls made from a basic sweet yeast dough are good companions to breakfast bacon and eggs. You'll find them an interesting bread to dress up a simple supper of cold meats or cheese and garden salad.

Pinch small portions from a light yeast dough to make the twists. Any leftover dough can be used to make your favorite coffee cake. Roll the small pieces of dough under palms of hands into long slender pieces fourteen inches long. Twist into a figure 8, then insert plumped apricots or prunes into the loops of the 8. Brush rolls with milk to give them an attractive gloss. Let rise until doubled and then bake.

Choose figure 8 rolls as a menu bread for their fruit taste, novel appeal, and nutritional value. Made with enriched flour, they bring essential B-vitamins and iron to the menu.

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry 1/2 cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup sifted enriched flour (about)
Milk for glaze
3 dozen cooked pitted prunes or apricots Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar, and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add two cups flour. Mix well. Add softened yeast and eggs. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled. Punch down. Divide into 18 equal portions. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Roll dough under palms of hands to form long slender pieces one-half inch thick and 14 inches long. Twist each piece into a figure eight on a greased baking sheet. Place apricot or prune in each "hole." Brush twists with milk and let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 18 rolls.

Buttons ON PARADE

Buttons that say, "Hi ya pal, didn't we meet on Saipan? Or was it on the beach at Leyte?" Little bright, shiny lapel emblems that took the place of ruptured ducks for men who came home from the war with memories of the hot sands of Tunisia, the bitter cold of Bastogne, the blood that was spilled at Anzio, the deadly flak over Berlin, the angry waters of the North Sea, or the hidden mines on the beach of Normandy. Today they're proud to wear the only fraternal emblem in America that says: "This chap served overseas in the Armed Forces of his country in time of war! He's been places and seen things!"

If you speak the language of an overseas veteran from personal experience—then you know the men who belong to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. You were comrades in time of war. In the V.F.W. you can still be comrades in time of peace. This explains why more than a million overseas veterans are quick to say—

SCHOOL NEWS

Mrs. Ovella Mason's second grade class had a very successful Christmas party in their beautifully decorated room December 16. The children built a fireplace and decorated it. They bought ornaments from home and made their silver Christmas tree a work of art. Each child had a turn putting snow flakes on the window panes, and a candle on the center pane. Much art work was in evidence in the form of holly leaves, holly berries, Santa Claus faces, Christmas bells and Bible story pictures. The parents found it difficult to decline the unique invitations which were tucked in a pocket on a Christmas stocking, made and colored by the children.

As soon as the parents and friends arrived, the Christmas program was turned over to the children in which each one in the class participated. Mrs. Evelyn Lauritzen, supervising principal, Lemon Grove School was introduced to parents and friends. After the program, Santa Claus (Duane Bennett in a clever costume) chose his helpers and distributed the gifts from around the tree. Each parent received a gift made by the child. Each member of the class was delighted with the gift received from the one who drew his name.

The very efficient room mothers, Mrs. H. G. Webster and Mrs. R. L. Bennett, assisted by the class, served delicious punch and cookies to 31 adults and 37 children. The guests were served first, while Santa finished his work. Then the children, after giving thanks, enjoyed their refreshments.

The following parents and friends made Mrs. Mason and the children happy by attending the party: Mesdames W. A. Stark, K. D. Kunkel, R. E. Wright, R. L. Bennett, H. G. Webster, R. H. Kerns, R. Long, A. M. Lizama, M. D. Anderson, F. A. Farrow, G. E. Taylor, K. R. Frail, W. T. Marable, W. E. Porter, R. J. Siegelman, F. L. Clark, V. Lankin, F. L. Nicodemus, E. D. McClure, C. J. Kruk, A. ## Little Jimmie Harper Passes Little Jimmy Harper, of Spring Valley, was released from his sufferings when he passed away Monday in Naval Hospital.

In July, 1948, Jimmy underwent an operation on the brain, and doctors discovered a malignant condition. Since then Jimmy was confined to his bed in a semi-paralytic condition. He was lovingly cared for part of the time by his grandmother. The story of his fortitude was printed in many of the newspapers of the Southland and Jimmy was cheered by cards, letters and gifts from sympathizing people.

Realizing that Jimmy could not live until his birthday early in January, on Sunday, December 4, all of the children of the neighborhood came to his home to observe his eleventh birthday—a month early.

Jimmy is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvy Harper, a sister, Diana and a brother, Alvy Harper II.

Rosary was recited Tuesday evening in Bonham Brothers Mortuary. Memorial services are being conducted at the mortuary this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. James Holmes, pastor of the Spring Valley Baptist Church. Entombment will be in Cypress View Mausoleum.

Monterey Heights Christmas Party

A medley of Christmas songs. They were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Larry Leach.

A trombone solo, Ave Maria was presented by Guy Winton. The dance class of Myra Sonka, gave a fine exhibition of tap, toe, novelty and acrobatic dancing which was well received. An instrumental quartette composed of Jim Mulder, Robert Adkins, Guy and Roy Winton played several selections. The program closed with the singing of Christmas carols by Campfire Girls and Girl Scouts, again led by Santa Claus.

The people who were directly responsible for making this grand affair possible were the committee in charge of the program, Mrs. Larry Leach, Mrs. Jane Forrester, Mrs. Dolly Tobin, Ferris White, Al Tombras and Carl (Santa Claus) Leibig. Adolph Robles donated the use of his truck which was used very satisfactorily as a stage. Mr. Brady gave the use of the lot on which the party was held, Bud Starke of Starke's Union Oil Station, gave the power for the electrical equipment. The piano was very generously loaned by the Borden's Piano Company of San Diego and last but not least the man who kept the big Bonfire burning brightly throughout the entire evening, Max Hayman.

Meet your neighbors, make new friends and see what is being done to improve Monterey Heights. Why not attend the next meeting which will be held Monday evening, at 7:30, in the Monterey Heights School on January 9.

If the Brakes Don't Work Just Hit Something Cheap

—By BILLY ROSE

A fellow tried to sell me a helicopter the other day. He told me I could hop from the roof of my theatre to my place in Westchester in 20 minutes, and added that it was as easy to drive as a car. I told him I wasn't interested because I couldn't drive a car. How come? Didn't I ever try and learn? Just once. And here's what happened. . . .

One day several summers ago, my wife said, "I wish you'd learn how to drive. Every time you want a paper or a pack of cigarettes, I've got to stop what I'm doing and chauffeur you into the village."

"Okay," I said, "if you'll play teacher."

Next morning I crawled into the car beside Eleanor. "Just turn this jigger over," she began, "push in this dingus, pull out this doohickey, step on this wing-doodle, press down on this thing—a m a b o b, and you're all set to go."

"What's this gizmo?" I asked. "The hand brake," she said. "You throw it on quickly in case of emergency."

"What happens if the brakes don't work?"

"Hit something cheap," advised my spouse.

A MOMENT LATER the car went hiccupping down the road. Then for a mile it went smooth as you please. A feeling of confidence came over me, the same feeling all new drivers get just before the lights go out. I pressed down on the gas.

"The pistons seem to be knocking," I said professionally. "Pistons nothing," said Eleanor. "Those are my knees."

Everything went fine until we got to the traffic light in the village. I forgot to press the hickymadoodle on the githooley and the car stalled. The lights changed from green to red, and from red back to green. A cop came over.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Haven't we got any colors you like?"

After switching the radio on and off, I suddenly pressed the right thing. In the order of the way it happened, I grazed the cop, skidded through the safety zone, clipped the fender on a bus, and came to rest with my bumper against a fire plug. The cop stalked over.

New Appetizing Flavor For Rice-Meat Ring

The whole family will enjoy the magic new flavor of this appetizing dish made with low-cost veal, set in a fluffy rice crown, and topped with a mouth-watering sour cream gravy. The flavor secret is the exciting new product, pure monosodium glutamate, which is sold in grocery stores under the name Accent and comes packed in handy red-and-silver canisters, or in a glass kitchen shaker.

Accent, pure monosodium glutamate is made from beets or wheat. It does not add any flavor, color or aroma to foods. Instead, it accents and perks up the good, natural food flavors and improves the taste of meats, poultry, seafood, gravies, sauces and left-overs.

Veal Paprika in Rice Ring
1 1/2 lbs. veal, cut in 2-inch pieces
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup flour
3 lbs. fat or drippings
1/2 cup water
Gravy
1 cup sour cream
1/2 cup milk
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. Accent
1 tsp. paprika

Rub veal with mixture of Accent, salt and flour. Brown in skillet with melted fat. Add onion, brown slightly. Add water, cover tightly and cook slowly for 50 minutes. Place meat in rice ring on platter. Blend gravy ingredients thoroughly with drippings in pan. Reheat and pour over meat.
